Soak up Dublin's sights

BY CRISTINA VELOCCI
Special to amNewYork

Next week, New Yorkers will mark St. Patrick's Day by cramming into overcrowded pubs, attempting to re-create the Dublin experience. But the real thing is so much better.

Home to both Guinness and Jameson, the Irish capital's pub culture makes it the perfect backdrop for a suds-soaked celebration of St. Patrick's Day, but it's fun all year round.

A DAY ON THE TOWN Old Jameson Distillery

Bow St., Smithfield, +353-1-807-2355, irishdistillershost.com/ojd
Originally built in 1780, it's little more than a museum housed in a section of its former self. (Production of Jameson ceased there in 1971.) Guided tours lead you through reproductions of each of the steps taken to create the triple-distilled whiskey, culminating in a complimentary dram.

The Chimney Smithfield Village,

+353-1-817-3838
Around the corner from the Old Jameson Distillery stands this chimney. Once a part of the facility, it now serves as a separate observation tower, providing 360-degree views of historic North Dublin from a two-tiered glass-enclosed platform 185 feet up.

Guinness Storehouse St. James's Gate,

+353-1-408-4800, guinness-storehouse.com
This year is the 250th anniversary of the St. James's

St. Patrick's Day fireworks over the River Liffey

(ST PATRICK'S FESTIVAL AND FAILTE IRELAND)

HELPFUL HINTS

- Currency: As of press time, €1 = $1.27 U.S.
- Liquor licenses: Last call on weekdays is 11:30 p.m. Thursday-Saturday it's 12:30 a.m. Some places with late licenses can stay open until 2:30 a.m.
- Tickets: Flights from New York start at $169.

Gate brewery, a 60-acre complex where 3 million pints of Guinness are produced daily. The seven-floor museum shaped like a pint glass covers everything from the ingredients and brewing process to the iconic advertisements. At The Gravity Bar, enjoy panoramic city views and a complimentary beer.

WHERE TO PASS OUT The Morrison

Ormond Quay, +353-1-887-2400, morrisonhotel.ie
This trendy hotel's 138 spacious rooms are the work of Irish fashion designer John Rocha, who incorporated velvet throws, dark wood, iPod docking stations and Frette linens into the up-scale decor.

Enjoy a free Guinness at The Gravity Bar. (GUINNESS STOREHOUSE)

SIPS AND SUSTENANCE The Temple Bar Pub

47-48 Temple Bar, +353-1-672-5286, thetemplebarpubdublin.com
One draw of the often-packed pub is an open-air beer garden. Another: it boasts the largest whiskey collection in Ireland with a worldwide selection 410 bottles strong.

Porterhouse Brewing Company

16-18 Parliament St., +353-1-679-8847, porterhousebrewco.com
Possibly the only place in Dublin where you'll get quizzical looks for ordering a Guinness, this tri-level brewery and pub serves only its own brand of stouts, ales and lagers, plus seasonal suds. Grab a stool by a giant copper still-turned-table and order up some filling fare, such as beef 'n' stout.

South William

52 S. William St., +353-1-672-5946, southwilliam.ie
This funky lounge offers an alternative to the traditional pub scene. Sip a specialty cocktail on one of the worn leather couches, or head to the outdoor patio. DJs spin on weekends, when the amber-lit basement turns into a large dance floor.
